ABSTRACT

Three indexes to the contents of the Lake Forest College (Illinois) Library's special collection of 600 issues of feminist alternative newspapers, generated by the women's movement between 1970 and 1980, are provided. Geographic, title, and subject indexes are listed, and primary source material on the women's movement in relation to labor, sports, education, biographies, fortune telling, art, discrimination, and nuclear power is featured. An overview of the major topics of the women's movement is provided through a selected subject index, which is based on topics covered in major newspaper articles. Arranged alphabetically by state and city, the geographic index lists newspaper titles and their corresponding volumes and issues archived in the library. Ninety-four separate titles are listed alphabetically in the title index. This collection is available to the public for research purposes. (JHP)

Preface

This listing provides indexes to the contents of a collection of about six hundred issues of feminist alternative newspapers (94 titles) generated by the Women's Movement, between 1970 and 1980. Indexes are (1) by geographical location (state, city, some foreign in English), (2) by title, and (3) by subject. The collection is available for research at the Elliot Donnelley (Special Collections Reading) Room, Donnelley Library.

For several years Donnelley Library has been accumulating a file of alternative newspapers and organization newsletters generated by the Women's Movement of the seventies. The largest part of this collection has been passed to us by Sarah Sherman and Russell Maylone of Northwestern University's Special Collections Department, as duplicates from their massive collections on the Women's Movement and the alternative press. Our satellite collection has served undergraduate research informally, housing a cornicopia of valuable information, but it has lacked easy access. The issues on hand, too, are scattered - reflecting Northwestern's surplus, rather than our positive collecting policy at Lake Forest.

The heart of this project is the subject index. In general, about six major items are covered from each issue - the major stories and articles. So this is a selective index. The headings are based on ones found in recent volumes of Women's Studies

Abstracts. "See" and "See also" references have been used to overcome the problems of subheadings, articles on two topics, etc.

Some of this material now is a half a generation old. Increasingly, the file provides good primary source material on the Women's Movement-centered perceptions of a wide range of issues (labor, sports, education, biographies, fortune-telling, art, discrimination, and nuclear power.) The index has been created to provide Lake Forest faculty and students with a practical entrèe to this rich body of material - for incidentals to support a paper in hand, for core resources for term papers, and (perhaps) for inspiration for thesis-level research. The subject index itself provides an interesting overview of the topics of the Women's Movement. From this perspective, and as a sample of what is available at Northwestern or in other collections, this could be a usefull tool.

The bulk of the project has been carried out during the summer of 1985, very ably, by Julie Stewart (class of 1986). She has been supported and assisted by Lily Mojekwu (class of 1986) and Carole Collins (class of 1987). Weaknesses, errors and inconsistencies will be the result of this writer's hurrying the project team at various times. Corrections and suggestions for revision will be welcomed by him.

Along with thanking our Northwestern friends and the student project team, let me acknowledge Katharine J. Amato - Von Hemert (class of 1979) who initiated this library's commitment to women's information.
